This year we are returning to a full-day schedule during exams (except for the last day). Instead of having regular classes, students will attend "Flexible Learning Blocks". The guidelines for these FLBs are as follows and will be communicated with students/parents as well:

- An FLB is a quiet, directed study. Students may work on any subject or study for any test during their FLBs. Students may not go to the Library or Learning Centers during FLBs unless they are in a directed study
- Attendance will be taken in all FLBs; students are expected to attend all of their FLBs
- Teachers have no responsibility to teach during that period. They may run a review session if they choose to, but it is not required
- Teachers are not required to attend duties during exams, including during FLBs
- Directed studies will meet during FLBs. These will be supervised by members of the guidance department, adjustment counselors, and interns
  - During morning FLBs, all regular directed studies (combined and senior) will meet in the cafeteria. Six students from each study are permitted to go to the library

- During the lunch period FLBs, combined studies (Grades 9-11) will meet in D109 (computer lab across from library), and senior studies will meet in D110h (computer lab in library; overflow in D110i classroom)

Monday 1/28 (Last Day of Semester 1)
